GUITEAU TESTIFIES

IN HIS OWN BEHALF.

Reading of Lefters From the Assassin-A Pittful Story of Childhood's Unhappy Days-Guiteau's Home Experiences-What He Learned at the Oneida Community.

It was the worst jam at the court-house this morning that has been seen there yet. The chamber was packed, the certifors jammed, and the steps without filled with men and women pushing and crowding to gain an entrance, seeming satisfied if they could only get within the building. As early as 8:30 o'clock the ladies began arriving, secured places nearest the door, and, being the first to gain an admission, ex had no earthly show, unless pinned to

Some Woman's Skipts, Counsel on both sides, mails officials, in-cluding the Acting Attorney-General, were forced to take chances and get in the best way they could. The result of this crush was a pro-tracted delay in the opening of court. Gui-teau's guards, when they arrived from jall, had a great deal of difficulty in making an opening in the crowd, through which he was hurried into the City Hall. Guileau's counsel and family and himself held a short, whispered consultation peared cain and composed.

At twenty minutes after 16 octors Mr. Scoville asked permission to put in the record of the Bloomingdate (N. X.) Insune Asylum, showeding that Francis Guiteau died there insure. This was admitted. The Prisoner On the Stand. The Prisoner on the Stand.

The prisoner was been placed on the stand. He was pale, and sat as far back from the view of the crowd as possible, with his face partly turned toward the jury.

"State to the jury your earliest recollections of your mother," was Mr. Scoville's first question.

Gineau leaned forward, his hands hanging over the rail of the box, and inquired:

"Am I to understand that I am called to-day to identify papers or to indergo my regular examination? If the latter, I object to it, i examination? If the latter, I object to it, it prefer giving my testimony at a stage surther on in the case. Besides, I am not well.

Mr. scoville—'I had atranged for you to go on to-day. Other witnesses are absent—"Guitequ—'well, you should have netded me in advance. I don't want to be forced on to the stand. When I do no of I intend to make a thorough and percentile.

The Court—"Scripinity, you need not testify at all, it you do not wish."

All you do not wish."

All you do not wish.

After some further discussion, during which the prisoner configued to hist upon being excused, Mr. Scoville—"Well, I will only ask a 500 or dinary questions, just now."

After some further discussion, during which the prisoner configued to hist upon being excused, Mr. Scoville began reading some of the clarent martial in the case of Eusign Wm, Just hebrer Mr. Scoville began quineau said: "May it please the Court, twonth like to be removed to my old Seas again, as this reading is likely to expanse for an hoor and a-hait."

Commercial College.

The prisoner's greatest trouble at that time appears to have been the raising of funds to pay his board bills. He appeared to have been a close student, and once or twice, expressed a fear that his hard work weard make him sick. At the conclusion as the seventh letter the prisoner (Tpiained that at that time he was using his own mency, his father setting as his guardian only. In the eighth letter he expressed a hope that he would finish his collegiate course within a year. He had then commenced signing his name.

July 11, 1259, the prisoner wrote from FreeDelf to his sister with reference to his denies to finish his education at the University of Michigan, but thought it impossible, as he had not sufficient major. He sought the advice of his distributed Mr. Scoville on the subject.

The next letter was dated ann Arbor, Geober 16, 1859, and was written to Mr. Scoville. The prisoner had gone there for a preparatory course prior to entering the University, should it be decided for him to enter. Another to his sister from the same place, the 6th of the next ignoff, amounced that he had entered the Union preparatory school. He advised his sister in that letter to place.

A TEXAS FIRE.

Court-House and All the Records Destroyed.
Austin, Tex., Nov. 20.—The court-hot

AUSTIN, TEX., Nov. 20.—The contr-house at Decatur was entirely destroyed by an incendiary fire yesterday. The entire loss cannot yet be estimated, but will be ever $150,000. All the civil and criminal docket papers were destroyed, as well as all the existing indictments.

Bealdes the above loss, there was another, which will throw much of the largest business interest in Texas into inextresible confusion and lead to many crimes and much violence. The herders in the State have intherto been protected by the cattle-brand law, which required every cattle owner in the State to have recorded in every county where their cattle were grazed their cattle-brands.

The brand records in the becentur Courthouse were all destayed, and it is suspected in having certain brand records lost. The courthouse was started by persons inforested in having certain brand records lost. The courthouse safes are all badly damaged. The one in the county elect's office is still too hot to open, and it is believed that the records in it and the $2,000 in money, which it contained, are burned. There is no clue to the insendency, and there was no insurance on either the building or its contents,

Children's Clothing. Why "Betsey and I Are Out."
Some time since THE CRITIC (askished an abstract of a bill of complaint by George E.

abstract of a bill of complating by George E. Noyes, of the well-known area of Gray & Noyes, against his partner, givin N. Gray, in which dissolution of partnership was prayed for. The resposes of Mr. Gray was to-day filed in the Supreme District Court by his attorney, C. O. Cole.

The defendant Gray acquiesces in the supreliment of a receiver, or to any means healing to a full separation from Noyes. His answer claims that the partnership difficulties have calminated as a consequence of Noyes, having, in 1875, unlawfully and without knowledge or understanding of Gray, purchased and had conveyed to him (Noyes) in dividually a Caerado mine property, paying therefore, with notes maturing within six meglass for $30,000, signed by him with the firm-name. As a consequence of these maturing notes, Mr. Gray, confronted by a compromise of the firm's a named by complainant.

The response of Gray further states that incidefondant had frequently charged complainant with having been a drone and a sluggard in the business, and the further states that incidefondant had frequently charged complainant with having been a drone and a sluggard in the business, and the further statement is made that the defendant (Gray) had said in strong terms that he defendent (Gray) had said in strong terms that he defendent sensitive of superting two fundales: that by his indolence and inattonion to business said Noyes was more of a detriment than a benefit to the concern, and that his conduct devolved constant Gray the necessity of not only watering over the outside interests of the business, but also of superintending the practical work of the foundry; that in many cases contracts obtained by defendant were filed so unsatisfacterly by the complainant that heavy loss was sustained.

The response of the defendant significes that he has a said times been more than welling to acquiesce in the appointment of na arbitration of all the first the sealest of the during that complained that the supering that for the difficulties of an anicable basis, b
